Vermont and Conservation.

Conservation—the saving of our natural resources—has won an emphatic victory in Vermont, and it is time that this state with its not inexhaustible supply of timber wakes up to the situation.

The defeat of the Ottawaquhee logging bill in the legislature last week is notable in more ways than one. It is the first time in the history of the state that the people have made a fight for the protection of their woods and water and won. The rebellious residents of Ottawaquhee valley have been making history.

The Champlain Realty company, a subsidiary of the International Paper company, sought a charter from the legislature, empowering it to enter upon the river, remove obstructions and make other improvements on this beautiful stream for the purpose of floating logs and pulp wood down to the Connecticut and thence to points wherever wanted. It has large tracts of timber around the headwaters of the river, which the company claimed it could not utilize unless it secured this log-floating privilege, which is probably not true. The bill before the legislature as first drafted was a fairly stiff proposition—similar bills have been presented and put through as a matter of course—and perhaps the sweeping nature of the first demands accounts for the sudden and unexpected wrath of opposition which killed it with an almost unanimous vote.

The Ottawaquhee bill is dead for two years at least, and with the spread of the conservation idea, the education of our people to the necessity of preventing further desolation of their woodlands, a similar measure will have less consideration in the future.—Woodstock Spirit of the Age.

A new two Biograph reels of pictures came to the Pavilion this morning, one entitled "The Broken Doll," conceived by dramatic critics to be the finest piece of work ever done by moving picture manufacturers. In making their decision, the critics took into consideration three points of excellence, namely, the plot, the acting and the photography; on all three points this picture got the highest number of votes. The story deals with an Indian child, to whom a white family had shown kindness. This kindness she returns by forfeiting her life in an endeavor to save a white village from destruction by the Indians. Her mission is accomplished, but she gives up her life from a wound received in the conflict, living only long enough to reach the grave of her broken doll, which had been given her by the white family whom she had saved. The little girl who plays the part of the Indian child is the well-known Biograph child, who has done excellent work in a number of the Biograph productions. The rest of the show at the Pavilion is fully up to the excellent standard which usually prevails at this popular little theatre. In fact, we think McDell and Corbly is the best comedy musical act ever seen there. The new program of vaudeville, which comes to-morrow, and the all-Biograph program of pictures which will be part of the program, had ought to net the Salvation Army considerably assistance toward their Christmas dinner for the needy. Everyone is invited to come. The entire receipts of the matinee go to charity.

RANDOLPH.

Miss Maud Johnston has left here for her home in Lebanon, N. H., to remain throughout the holidays.

Walter W. Carpenter, one of Randolph's oldest inhabitants, is now quite ill, and his strength seems to be failing each day.

Dr. Charles Cushman of Chicago is here for the holiday season with his sister, Mrs. P. A. Eaton, and his mother, Mrs. G. E. Cushman.

Herbert Viall of Keene, N. H., was a guest of his sister, Mrs. Mary Strong, on Monday night and returned to his home in Keene the following day.

Mrs. Elizabeth Temple is here with Miss Alice McIntyre during the absence of her mother, Mrs. R. B. McIntyre, at Woodville, N. H., where she was called by the serious illness of her little granddaughter.

The meeting of the Christian Brotherhood, held in the parish house on Monday evening, was well attended and following the usual supper, there was a discussion on "The possibilities of the brotherhood." L. B. Johnson, being the first speaker, told of the opportunity of the brotherhood to make the sanatorium much more useful, and a greater factor in the community, while Prin. E. G. Ham, advocated the claims of the Randolph high school and the influence for good that the brotherhood might have over the school, aiding it in many substantial ways. Henry Johnson also spoke in favor of both. This was followed by others and the meeting proved to be one of the most interesting of the season.
